TO THE MEMBERS AND THE COACH
OF THE NINETEEN HUNDRED
AND ELEVEN FOOTBALL TEAM

VERITAS AONORQUE

Barnwell is an example of a game little man making good. Last year Barnwell, "the little wonder," played center on the Second Team, and through his consistent playing, made a great showing on the scrubs.

At the first of the 1911 season Coach Denny was looking for a center, and naturally the first one he tried was Barnwell, the Scrub's center of 1910. And in spite of his weight of only one hundred and seventeen pounds, there is no doubt that "Barny" would have made good as a center, if it had not been that Assistant Coach Francis, knowing the qualities of Barnwell as a tackle, and taking into consideration his weight, thought that it would be best to shift him to left end.

Barnwell deserves much credit for the showing that he made, as he has been in football only two years. He was a good tackler and a good man for running down under punts, for when the ball landed he was ready either to tackle the opponent in his tracks or to interfere in such a manner that his opponent's chances for gaining ground were nil.

LOUIS DANIEL CONN—Center.

Conn is another of the few men who have been on the team for more than one season. In fact he has been a First Team man for three years.

In 1909 Conn played the position of guard and, although he was not quite as large as he now is, he proved to be a very valuable man.

In 1910 he again played the position of guard, and he held his job down in great style.

In 1911 Coach Denny, after having shifted little "Barney" to left end, looked around to see where his center would come from, and as experience is essential to a good center, he naturally tried Conn.

"Pecan" readily adapted himself to his new position, not only on the offensive, but on the defensive, for it was on his defensive playing that Conn's chances for remembrance in M. U. S.'s Football Hall of Fame are based. He played in the second line of defense a defensive position which gives many opportunities, of all which Conn readily took advantage.

At a meeting of the Football Team Conn was elected Captain of the 1912 team.

MALCOLM EUGENE DRIVER—Fullback.

Driver is one of the old men of the 1911 team. He has played on the M. U. S. team as a regular for two years.

Driver is a fullback who, if he had more weight, would be a very valuable man on his team. But his weight made it hard for him to go through the heavy opponents. Notwithstanding this drawback though, he is a hard fighter, and deserves much credit for what he has done for the Red and Blue.

His best work for the 1911 season was in making interference for the halfbacks. Driver seemed to take pleasure in taking a man out of his path. This he did remarkably well on Thanksgiving, and his team was greatly benefitted by his work in this line during the game.

Driver has never let himself out as he should, and we predict that when he has once felt the call of the game he will be an indispensable man.

Norman is a brother of Captain Eckert, and it does not take long to see that he is made of the true stuff.

This is Eckert's first trial at the college sport, and by his showing this year he will surely make a fine player in the near future.

By hard and steady work he made the team from the very start and played through every game. He has the build for a prep-school football player, and he learned to a great extent last fall how to use every ounce of his weight.

It will certainly be good news to our readers to know that Eckert has several more years at M. U. S.

MANUEL J. HUNTER—Halfback.

Hunter was able to play in but two games of the 1911 season. In his first game, which was against the U. of T. team, he played a good game, and did especially well on defense. In the Thanksgiving game Hunter was a stone wall on defense, and at one time made a very spectacular gain around Old Hi's end.

Hunter will yet make M. U. S. a good football player, and will be able to play out the entire schedule.

W. Addison C. Johnston—Right End.

Johnston first made his appearance on the M. U. S. campus in 1909. He played on the Scrubs for two seasons—1909 and 1910.

Johnston has always shown a great deal of spirit, and by his hard work had often, even as a Scrub, given new life to the men. This spirit of "Johnny's" did a great deal for the team in 1911, and before the season ended M. U. S. had the hardest fighting little team ever turned out by the school.

Johnston was a great little end—weighing only one hundred and twenty-four pounds. But what he lacked in weight he doubly made up for in willingness and grit. His greatest strength was on the defense. He was a hard, accurate tackler and was great in tearing up interference. In the Mississippi Reserve game "Johnny" played one of the pluckiest games ever seen on a Memphis gridiron. Attack after attack was made against him by the heavy Mississippi backs, but he stuck to it like a Hercules from Lilliput, and never thought of giving up until he had to be taken from the field, exhausted.

Johnston, as a football player, has made many friends at M. U. S. on account of his willingness and grit, and all are hoping to see him back next year.

Knowlton, one of the four men of 1910, does not need an introduction to those who have kept in touch with M. U. S. sporting news.

To say the least of Knowlton he is a very valuable man to have on any prep-school team. Although he does not play a flashy game which makes the grand stand notice a man for one game only, still he is a "heady" consistent player, always at the right place at the right time.

On account of his consistency Knowlton proved a great help to the new men in our line; always encouraging and putting new life into those who thought that they "just couldn't get through their opponents, or couldn't stop the plays of the heavy backs of the enemy;" for it must be said that in every game that M. U. S. played in 1911 they were outweighed at least twelve pounds to the man.

Special mention should be made of Knowlton's work in the Mississippi Reserve game. Here he clearly showed that he could be counted on to be one of the mainstays of the team. His tackling was hard and accurate, and opened up holes "large enough to drive a wagon through."

ELISHA LYMAN MCLALLEN, JR.—Right Tackle.

Mac, our friend from Indiana, came out for the team this year in opposition to his own wishes. But he was rewarded by making the team. First he was used at guard but was later shifted to tackle for the betterment of the team. Mac was fast for a line man, and did good work in his games against Mississippi Reserves and Tennessee Medicos. His greatest handicap was inexperience, but we are sure he will overcome this fault when he is better acquainted with the game.

Rhodes, although inexperienced in the finer points of the game, has great prospects for the future. He has all the qualities of a great halfback. He is fleet of foot, and makes his little weight count at all times. With a little more experience he will certainly measure up to the efficiency predicted for him.

On offense Rhodes did all that could have been expected of a halfback under ordinary circumstances. He always made good gains when his interference opened the way, and with a little more initiative, which will come with experience, Rhodes will certainly make a great halfback.

He will return next year, and so will be heard from again.

The great find at M. U. S. this year was quarterback Smith. For two years Smith struggled on the Scrubs as an end; but this year he played a new position.

M. U. S. has had some good quarterbacks in her history, but for the last two years this position has been lacking, consequently Coach Denny, at the opening of the 1911 season, determined at all hazards to develop a good quarter. Looking for a pupil, he hit upon Smith and Smith did the rest.

He played in every game of the season from whistle to whistle, and was always there with the goods. He developed rapidly at his new position, and reached a brilliant climax in the Thanksgiving game. Well, he certainly played a game that day.

To those who saw the M. U. S.-High game it is unnecessary to go into details as to Smith's work. He played a game that any man would be proud of. Smith is undoubtedly the best quarterback that has sailed under the Red and Blue. Not only does he surpass the others in straight football, but also in his genius as a strategist—every opportunity was taken advantage of. It will certainly be received gladly by those who are interested in M. U. S.'s future to know that Smith will be at the pilot position in 1912.

In 1910 Sparr was used as a sub at center and at guard. There he clearly proved that he would make a valuable player, and it seems by the showing that he made in 1911 that Sparr did not exactly strike his stride in 1910.

At the beginning of the 1911 season Sparr started out in great form, and was placed at left guard, where he remained during the entire season. As the season developed Sparr developed with it, and reached his climax in the McTyeire game. In this game Sparr did the things which any all-round line man should do, but the things which they hardly ever do. Besides playing a "jam up" game in the little hole that a line man claims as his own, Sparr showed in this game that he had formed a wider idea of the duty of a line man. From whistle to whistle in this McTyeire game Sparr was in every play, or else going to it as fast as his long sinewy legs would carry him. But the great feat accomplished by him was: first, holding his man so that there would be no opportunity of his breaking up the punt; and then, what was next seen of this left guard was his tackle down the field. Sparr was undoubtedly one of the two best guards in Memphis, outclassing all the rest in many finer points of the game.

Jim White, the star left end of the 1910 machine, was elected captain for 1911. Realizing that "Blacky" would be even more valuable to the team if he was in the backfield, Coach Denny, changed him to left half. Here Jim played with his usual brilliancy, always calm, quick to size up a play and sure to gain if intrusted with the ball. With such a captain it is not surprising to find M. U. S. holding her own with the best prep-schools in the district. And to her captain much of the praise for the wonderful games played should be given. For it was Jim who made the first touchdown against McTyeire that has been made by any school since 1907. It was also Jim who booted the ball between the posts on Turkey Day and won from High School. Jim is probably one of the best all-round athletes that ever wore the Red and Blue. Besides football, he is a baseball star, and a brilliant soccer and basket ball performer. He is the most popular fellow in school, and nothing that the fellows can do for Jim is too great to be done. This is Jim's last year at M. U. S., and next year we expect great things of him in college. With our "Cap" go the best wishes for success, not only from the faculty, but from every boy, from the smallest to the largest, in school. "So here's to Jim."

ROBERT EVANS DENNY—Coach.

Mr. Denny matriculated in our midst three seasons ago. He came to us from Davidson College in North Carolina, where he had attended college. His first year with us found poor material with which he did wonders, although he lost to High School through hard luck. Last year things did not improve. But this year Mr. Denny said, "We must win Thanksgiving Day." And by his perseverance, in never losing faith in us, and his skillful coaching, he attained what he desired. "Bob" needs no eulogy to keep him dear to the Red and Blue, for every one knows how dear he is to us and hopes he will come back to coach us next year.

Greeting

As a general rule all seniors regard themselves the "wisest and brightest of mankind," and among the members of the class of '12 at M. U. S., are few exceptions to the rule. So when the publication of another volume of the M. U. S.-Kito was suggested and our principals dubiously shook their heads, we felt puzzled and hurt. Surely our worthy instructors did not appreciate our true worth! They did not realize that we were no longer babies of the lower forms, but dignified eighth form men—seniors. We longed for a chance to show what we could really do—and the chance came only too soon.

This has been a hard year to publish an annual; the most terrific winter experienced in years was followed by a still more disagreeable spring. Business has been bad and advertisements—the mainstay of every annual, seemed scarce. But our business managers went to work with a vim and soon things began to look more promising.

As for the other side—the material found between the front cover and the advertisements, that is a different story. "There must be something original," said our principal. For days, aye, weeks, we chewed pencils and thought. We wrote and rewrote, copied and re-copied. We came to realize that, even though seniors, we were "only poor, weak mortals after all." However, inspirations began to come slowly; then others more slowly. Finally, vague ideas took concrete form and, under the direction of Messrs. Rhea and White, shaped themselves into the present book, and now, with its appearance, we cannot suppress a feeling both of relief and temerity. As the work has gone on we have realized our incompetency. We know that without the untiring criticism and well-directed suggestions of Messrs. Rhea and White our fondest hopes would never have been realized. Therefore we beg each and every one to whom this volume may come to take it as an expression of the various phases of our school life and to accept it in the same spirit that has prompted us in presenting it to you.

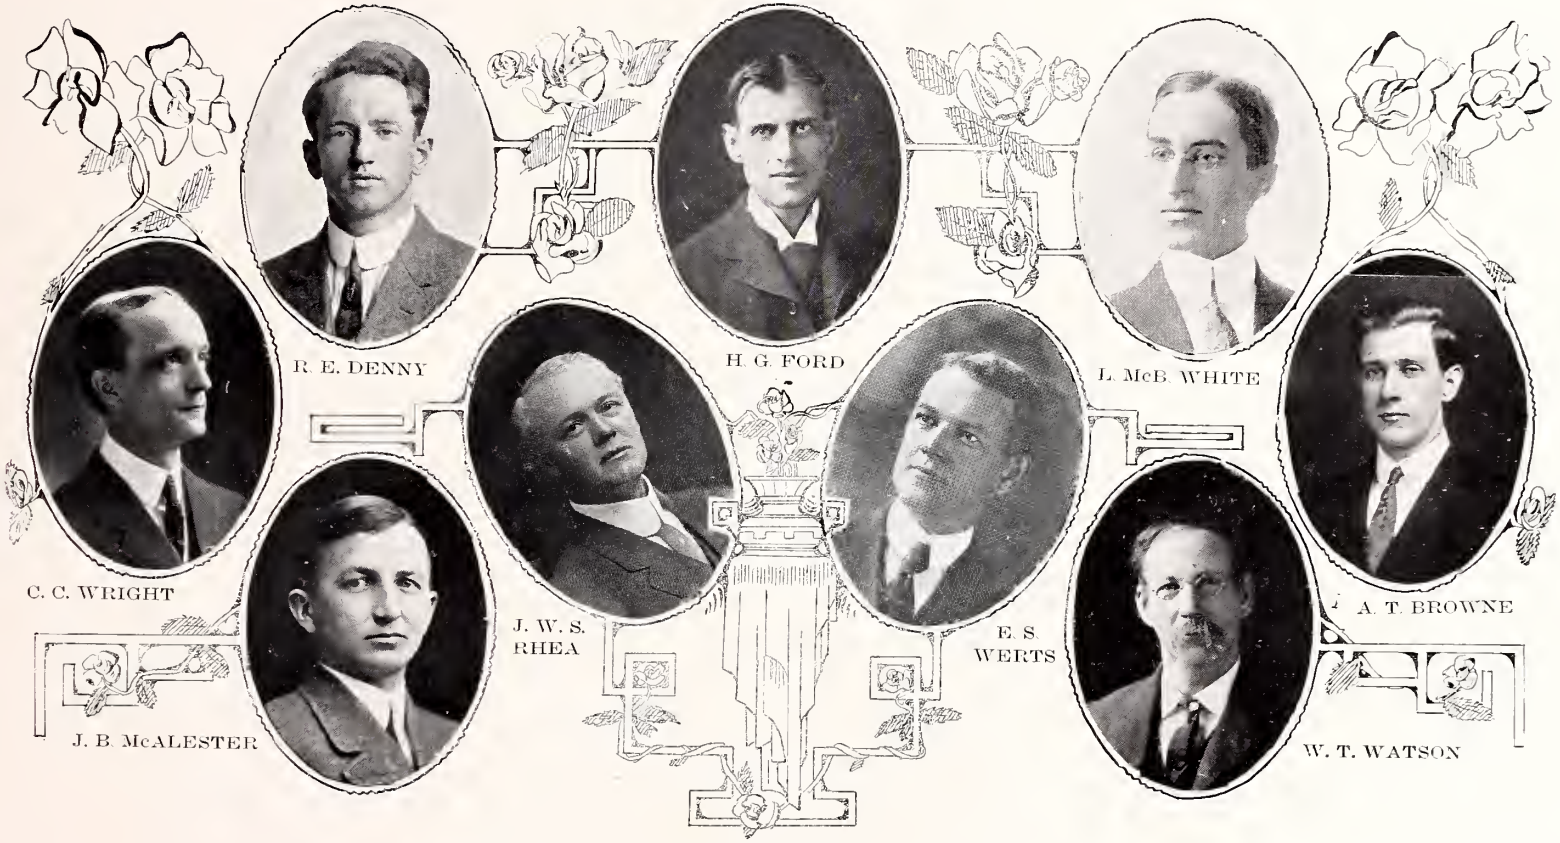
VERITAS AONORQUE



What's in a Name?

Alone in the large touring-car sat the Young-Gibson girl, Reed-ing a Love story, while her Cheshire-cat was playing in the bottom of the car with a Ball. "Mac," Call-ed the girl to the Driver, "Go a little faster." At her request the Driver sent the big car fairly flying over the Rhodes, tooting his Horn to clear the way.

It was winter. Every Field was covered with Frost, and at the shots of Hunters, many flocks of wild ducks and White-Pidgeons rose into the air. Far in the distance was a high Hill, at the bottom of which the tinkling of a cow-Bell was heard. At last a high Church-ill came into view. Below this was the small village of Johnston, one of the numerous Townes in that section. The Young-Gibson girl told the Driver to stop at the hotel. As the auto slowed down, a Brown, weather-beaten man, who was the only black-Smith in the town, came upon the veranda. When the Gibson girl asked for a drink of water, he escorted her to the Barn-well and, taking down one of the old-fashioned Potts from the Barr over the well, the Good-man gave her a drink of water.

After receiving directions to take the road with the Northcross and being refreshed, the Gibson girl jumped into the car. "What time is it?" she asked the Driver. Pulling out his Elgin-watch, he replied, "Just time to reach the Lake." As the night was growing Mooney she urged him to drive faster. At last they arrived at Butte, and the Gibson girl hurried to the Mason-ic hotel, where she had ordered rooms. As she was very tired from travel, she walked down the Hall to her rooms, and was soon in bed thinking of the time she would have on the Lake on the Morrow.

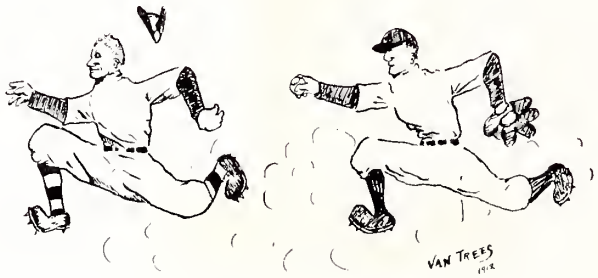
12 M.U.S. BOYS



STOP THIEF !!

Everybody's Doin' It."

FORM I.

A. B. Goodman, Jr.
W. Halliburton.
M. McDowell.
N. Summerfield.

The First Form.

My! it's great to go to school
And play with great big boys.
But, whew! it's hard to learn a rule
And forget about my toys.

Really, school isn't so bad, especially if you are in the First Form. Of course, a fellow feels a little creepy and timid the first few days he comes to school, but then that soon wears off. Then, too, sometimes he gets "100" on his arithmetic paper or his spelling paper. He carries it home; papa tells him what a smart boy he is, and mama kisses him. Yes, school is a pretty good place after all.

Does the First Former worry about the long road ahead of him? Not a bit of it. He studies his lessons, because the teacher says to study them. He plays at recess because he likes to play. He is glad when school is out, for then he can play some more.

First and Second Forms

FORM II.

M. Miller.

The Second Form.

Isn't it nice to be in the Second Form? "Reading, 'riting, 'rithmetic; taught to the tune of a hickory stick?" No, not to the tune of a hickory stick, but to the tune of Mr. Denny, which is a great deal better. For all the Second Formers are downright chums of Mr. Denny.

In the Second Form a boy begins to awaken to the fact that life is not all play, that there are tasks that must be done, and lessons that must be learned. Yet he now enjoys the fun of school life that compensates for its work. He begins to play in the gym, and even to try in the races on Field Day. He has forgotten the pleasures of babyhood and has assumed those of boyhood.

The Third Form.

The heights attained, now the last year's Second Former feels a sense of triumph. He is now in the highest class of his department, the lower school, and he sits most likely in the largest seat in his room. Two years of school life have had their influence upon him. He knows something now about studying, about grading, exams, and about pages of dictionary, too.

The Third Former comes early. He listens to the larger boys as they talk and laugh and tell about games and players. The school bell rings and he hastens in to sit in the seat with the hero of the latest game. He pauses now and then in his series of questions to measure himself with the hero. Thus the school spirit starts, ambition grows, and purpose forms. Then develops the faculty of "seeing why," and being able to understand. The meaning of honor adds its self as a final sum, including all other virtues that prepare the Third Former to enter the upper school, and to hold a place of respect among his school fellows.

Fourth Form

THE FOURTH FORM.

One, two, three, four. Four years at school. By this time a boy begins to feel that he is one of the old fellows. Now he can look down with a kind of compassion upon the "little boys" in the lower school. Yet, the Fourth Former garners work and responsibility along with the honor. For now he must study at night for a whole hour, maybe two. Now, too, he may be seen writing whole pages of Latin verbs for Mr. Wright's afternoon reception. Still his unqualified approval of himself is not without foundation; for to be sure he has passed some terribly hard examinations; he has gotten several certificates at the end of each year. Above all, he has a good start on the thorny path of knowledge.

When a boy reaches the Fourth Form he begins to look forward to the time when he will be in the Eighth Form, or when he enters college. Though it seems to be a long time off, it will come before he knows it, or perhaps, even wishes it to.

THE FIFTH FORM.

The boy in the Fifth Form is still a boy in every sense of the word. Full of mischief and constantly seeking some outlet for his pent-up energy; he is restless under the restraint of school duties. To him, lessons are hard and useless tasks, and many and various other things appeal more strongly to him than overcoming the difficulties of Latin, or threading the mazes of mathematics. He evades the dreaded demerit more from a disinclination to return on Saturday than a desire to have a clean record.

But, with it all, the first glimmerings of a desire to do better are evident. He is half ashamed of his "kiddish" ways, and the advice and reproof of older and wiser heads is received more attentively than formerly. Then, too, he is getting larger and hopes soon to assume the dignity of long trousers. And, unconsciously, he feels the soberizing effect of this approaching dignity.

THE SIXTH FORM.

Yes, hooray for the Sixth Form—a form where battles are lost and won; mostly won. Here the fellows fight many a battle with Caesar, sometimes late in the afternoon, nay, even unto 5:00 o'clock. But, thanks to Mr. Wright, they defeat the noble Roman in the end.

The other "Jonah" is that mighty Algebra. And you can mark it down that after a boy has wrestled with radicals and similar equations in Mr. Ford's guiding footsteps, he has a lasting respect for the subject. In the Sixth Form the athlete of the school begins to develop. Athletic aspirations begin to take hold of him. He already sees himself in the football group or on the baseball team. He probably hasn't made the varsity this year; but there are two more years to come, and his chances are good.

The Sixth Form seems to beckon the new boy, for here is where two-thirds of them land.

They are a heterogeneous mass of old boys, new boys, large boys and small boys. But all "studious" boys.

Seventh Form

THE SEVENTH FORM.

The average boy beginning the Seventh Form is one who has just passed through the period of rapid physical growth that saps the energy and causes a chronic condition of mental weariness. So fast has he grown that he has had no energy left for much else, and consequently has bent his thoughts but little upon shaping his future. Such a condition of laziness results that he is often accused of lack of ambition. But as the year progresses, the Seventh Former begins to wake up, so to speak, and to find out that he's been loafing. The result is that his work improves and he begins to feel that he is no longer a boy, but a man. Indeed, so great does this idea become to some that they commit the lamentable error of stopping school and getting a job, thus missing that which is the greatest help a man can have—a college education.

This year the Seventh has produced fellows of notable attainments, both in scholarship and athletics. Many a good mark in class room and on exam. may be traced to some enterprising and deserving Seventh Former, while a number from this form made their monograms in various departments of the school's athletics.

LOUIS DANIEL CONN . . . . . "Bull"

Jeffersonian; M. U. S. Council, 1911-'12; Secretary and Treasurer of Athletic Association; Center, Football Team, 1909-'10-'11; Soccer Team, 1910-'11-'12; Baseball Team, 1911-'12.

The cognomen of "Bull" is not inapplicable to his person—big, heavy set, and good-natured, with grit that only veteran "centers" of M. U. S. football teams can have. Conn is a fellow you can't help liking. Besides having been a prime factor of M. U. S. elevens for the last three years, "P. Conn" has also done good work at baseball. He is never known to quit, and works hard at anything he undertakes.

Conn has been elected captain of the 1912 football team. Everyone is glad that he is coming back.

FRANK HAYNE BARNWELL . . . . . "Barney"

Jeffersonian; Member of M. U. S. Council, 1910-'11-'12; President of Jeffersonian Society, 1912; Annual Board, 1911-'12; Glee Club, 1911-'12; Secretary and Treasurer VIII. Form, 1912; Football Team, 1911; Gymnasium Team, 1912; Champion Light Weight Wrestler.

Barnwell entered M. U. S. in the fall of 1909. Since that time he has added a great deal to the school, both as a student and an athlete.

"Barney" is now the undefeated wrestler of the school—winning the championship in the spring of 1910.

The school will certainly miss "Barney," but wherever he goes there will go with him the best wishes of the boys of M. U. S.

VERITAS HONORQUE

JAMES ALBERT CRAWFORD, JR. . . . . "Zooney"

Hamiltonian; Inter-Class Soccer and Baseball Teams, 1911-'12.

"Zooney" does not take much to athletics, but his sonorous voice is always ready when the games come off. He spends a good part of his time inventing noises that will add to his already glorious name, and even if he does talk slowly, he gets there—so did the terrapin.

"Zooney's" chief hobby is automobiles. About the only time you'll find him out of his car is when he is under it. Nothing pleases him more than to find an unfamiliar road and then to play Barney Oldfield.

For the sake of "Zooney" himself and all the people who frequent the drives in and about Memphis, we hope that he will get over his speeding craze.

WILLIAM CARUTHERS GRAVES . . . . . "Weary Willie"

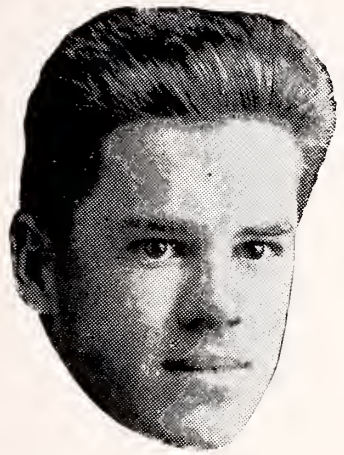
Jeffersonian; Editor-in-Chief Topics, 1911-'12; Annual Board, 1911-'12; Secretary and Treasurer of the Bible Class, 1911-'12; Winner Correction Contest in Topics, 1911; Cheer Leader, 1911-'12; Soccer Team, 1909-'10-'11; Basket Ball Team, 1911; M. U. S. Glee Club and Quartet, 1912; Winner Gymnasium Monogram, 1912; Jeffersonian Debating Team, 1912.

He has a nick name, "Weary Willie." At times it suits him well, but at others—just wait until you've seen him "leading the rooting," or "working out in the gym," before you draw your conclusions. He is Editor-in-Chief of Topics, and this speaks for itself. Evidently Mr. Noah Webster and Will were raised together, for the latter is the possessor of a vocabulary that would do justice to that famous personage. It may be truly said of "Weary" that "he makes his little fishes talk like whales."

We are sorry Will will not be with us next year. He will probably go to Vanderbilt and study medicine.



WILLIAM ADDISON CALDWELL JOHNSTON . . . . . "Johnny"

Yes, he is a hustler, a live wire, always among the first in every phase of school life, be it sport or work. Johnston is an excellent type of the well-rounded fellow.

As Editor-in-Chief of the M. U. S.-Kito, his energy and ability are at once apparent; as an end on the football team, his work was creditable; and as a member of the Athletic Board and Honor Council, "Johnny" has shown his sterling worth.

Indications point, we are glad to say, to the fact that Addison will return to M. U. S. next year for a post-graduate course.

CHARLTON WILLIAM HALL . . . . . "Shorty"

Jeffersonian; M. U. S. Glee Club, 1912; Gymnasium Team, 1912; Assistant Cheer Leader, 1912.

"Shorty" has attended M. U. S. since 1904. Under all his jokes and good nature one can see a steady purpose. Although he has scarcely ever participated in athletics, he has always been on the side lines with his excellent spirit and ever ready voice.

M. U. S. may well be sorry to lose such a boy, and will miss him when he leaves us for Georgia Tech. next year.

MILTON LYMAN KNOWLTON . . . . . "Milt"

Jeffersonian; Vice-President M. U. S. Council, 1911-'12; Annual Board, 1911-'12; Bible Class, 1910-'11-'12; M. U. S. Glee Club, 1912; Left Tackle, Football Team, 1910-'11; Jeffersonian Debating Team, 1912.

Our pessimistic boy. He "does love an argument," as is shown by his taking the opposite side of every question. He has also helped his side wonderfully in the Literary Society.

In football Milt has done great things at left tackle. He has played on the team two years, and will be missed when he leaves.

Unless he accepts the leading role in some grand opera company, Knowlton will enter the business world next year. We wish him success.

DONELSON MARTIN LAKE . . . . . "Athletic Lake"

Hamiltonian; M. U. S. Council, 1910-'11-'12; Secretary of Council, 1911-'12; Topics Staff, 1911-'12; Annual Board, 1912; Bible Class, 1910-'11-'12; Vice-President Bible Class, 1911-'12; Inter-Class Basket Ball Team, 1912; Hamiltonian Debating Team, 1912.

Donelson has been with us four years, during which time he has shown himself to be a steady, hard-working student. Into all things connected with school, Donleson has put his best effort.

As business manager of Topics and also of the Annual, Donelson has labored diligently and faithfully, and his efforts have been large factors in the successful publication of both literary productions.

If his future can be judged by his past, it may be safely said that Donelson need have no fear of failure in life. He enters Princeton next year.

JOHN ETHERIDGE MCCALL, JR. . . . . "Jedge"

Hamiltonian; Bible Class, 1911-'12; Topics Staff, 1912; Inter-Class Basket Ball Team, 1912; Substitute, Football Team, 1911; Baseball Team, 1912; Hamiltonian Debating Team, 1912.

"Jedge" has been with us three years. During this time he has taken advantage of his opportunities, especially in debating. "Mac" is a debater of unusual merit, and promises to be a successful lawyer. After leaving M. U. S. he will study law at Vanderbilt University.

"Jedge" was substitute end on the football team of 1911, but shines most at basket ball and baseball.

In his studies he has always done the required work, taking special interest in English and mathematics.

Although "Mac" may not be President of the U. S., we are sure he will be successful in his profession.

ELISHA LYMAN MCLALLEN . . . . . "Mac"

Jeffersonian; M. U. S. Bible Class, 1910-'11-'12; Class Poet, 1912; M. U. S. Soccer Team, 1909-'10-'11; Inter-Class Basket Ball Team, 1912; Right Tackle, Football Team, 1911.

Elisha Lyman McLallen, the life of the Eighth Form, and a direct descendant of the illustrious Elisha of Bible times, came to M. U. S. from M. H. S. three years ago.

Although "Mac" is full of fun and devilment, he is also a hard worker and a good student. His work at right tackle on the 1911 football team was excellent. However, there is a report current that while playing football, Elisha was only training to carry out his one fond ambition—that of becoming a Russian dancer.

Upon leaving M. U. S. McLallen will enter Perdue University. The good wishes of all his many friends go with him.

HENRY JOSEPH SHEPHERD . . . . . "Shep"

Hamiltonian; Honor Council, 1911-'12; Topics Staff, 1911; Winner of Something during A. D., 19—; Captain of M. U. S. Reserve Football Teams, 1911-'12; Inter-Class Soccer and Basket Ball Teams, 1911-'12; Member of Hamiltonian Debating Team, 1912.

Of the boys who will take post-graduate courses at M. U. S. next year, it may be truly said that they will be "as sheep having no Shepherd," for "Shep" enters Princeton next year.

Shepherd has always been an excellent student and a hard worker.

Although "Shep" can never wear an M. U. S. monogram as a sign of his efficiency on the athletic field, he will always remain first in the hearts of his fellow students as a man who "stuck to it" and helped make the "Scrubs," a matter not to be taken lightly.

M. U. S. will miss "Shep" next year.

EDWARD WHITE SMITH . . . . . "Ed"

Jeffersonian; Annual Board, 1912; Secretary of Jeffersonian Literary Society, 1911-'12; M. U. S. Bible Class, 1910-'11-'12; M. U. S. Council, 1911-'12; Vice-President of Glee Club, 1912; Quarterback, Football Team, 1911; Baseball Team, 1911-'12; Soccer Team, 1910-'11-'12; Captain, Inter-Class Basket Ball Team, 1912; Jeffersonian Debating Team, 1912; Gymnasium Team, 1912.

With a smile scheduled to win and dimples, rumored to have been "kissed by angels," "Ed" has met all the difficulties that present themselves to the Eighth Form boy.

Eddie's athletic career is one to be proud of. In the spring of '11, he won his baseball monogram, and the following fall made one of the best quarterbacks the school football team has ever had.

Ed will probably return to M. U. S. for a post-graduate course next year, and then enter the University of Virginia Law School.

HAROLD ADAMS SPARR . . . . . "Newly Wed"

Jeffersonian; Annual Board, 1911-'12; Topics Staff, 1912; Treasurer of Jeffersonian Literary Society, 1912; Bible Class 1910-'11-'12; Football Team, 1911; Inter-Class Basket Ball Team, 1912; Soccer Teams, 1910-'11-'12; Gymnasium Team, 1912.

Gigantic of limb, yet supple as a dish rag, awkward, but agile withal, Sparr has stumbled his way to a secure place in the hearts of all. Everybody likes him, his droll antics, his ludicrous actions, and his generous heart.

At left guard on the varsity this year, Sparr won our respect and admiration as an athlete. The capable and efficient way in which he handled his position brought yells of delight from the rooters on more than one occasion.

In the other departments of school, Sparr has left a record. As a member of the Topics staff, Kito Board, and Jeffersonian Society he has done himself credit. It is his intention to return to M. U. S. next year for a post-graduate course.

HERBERT RAYMOND SULLIVAN . . . . . "John L."

Jeffersonian; Annual Board, 1912; Topics Staff, 1912; Inter-Class Soccer and Basket Ball Teams 1911-'12; M. U. S. Bible Class, 1911-'12; Final Debate, 1911-'12.

"John L." though not so hefty as his worthy ancestor, stands equally high among his school fellows as did his namesake of the fistic art. "Sully" has an enviable reputation among the boys for his work along literary lines. He always stands in the front rank, and bids fair to add to M. U. S. a fine distinction for his stories that go through its papers. "John L." is an associate editor on the Topics as well as the Kito, but they say it is the busiest man that can do the most work, so this adds much to his already won laurels.

JAMES LIVINGSTON WHITE, JR. . . . . "Jim"

Hamiltonian; M. U. S. Council, 1911-'12; M. U. S. Bible Class, 1910-'11-'12; President of Athletic Association, 1911-'12; President of Hamiltonian Literary Society, 1912; Secretary of M. U. S. Glee Club, 1912; Football Team, 1910-'11; Captain of Football Team, 1911; Track Team, 1911-'12; Baseball Team, 1911-'12; Captain of Inter-Class Basket Ball Team, 1912; M. U. S. Soccer Team, 1911-'12; Leader of Hamiltonian Debating Team, 1912.

There is not much use of saying anything about Jim; everybody knows him. Since he came to us from the High School of Gainsboro, N. C., two years ago, White has won the respect of both boys and teachers. He was the captain of the football team of '11, and was the hero of every game. He is a "star" in anything he undertakes, and through it all Jimmy has gone in his quiet, unassuming way and has not had to change the size of his hat.

Where he will go next year is not known, but whoever gets our "Cap" will find in him a man who will not need a monument to be remembered by.

HENRY WADE WITZMANN . . . . . 'Sheep"

Jeffersonian; M. U. S. Bible Class, 1910-'11-'12; M. U. S. Topics Staff, 1912; Winner of Prize Debate, 1911; Leader of Jeffersonian Debating Team, 1912; Substitute, Football Teams, 1910-'11.

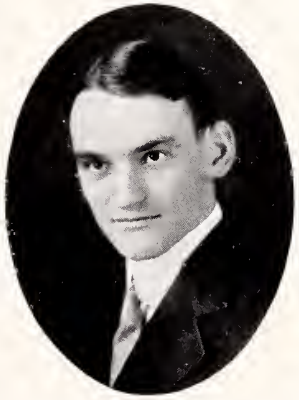
For seven years "Sheep" Witzmann has grazed in the fields of learning and frisked over the hills of knowledge at M. U. S. For seven years he has pushed resolutely on over the rough places of primary education. For seven years he has worked hard towards one great end—Yale.

M. U. S. will miss "Witz" when he leaves next year. She will miss his curly head, his frequent outbreaks of oratory, his spirit, and his noise.

Some day we hope to turn the leaves of the "Yale News" and see there great things about "Sheep." Good luck, old man!

ADRIAN FLOYD SMITS.

Death has taken from our midst a beloved and honored teacher, Mr. Adrian Floyd Smits, and the students of M. U. S. most keenly feel his loss. Mr. Smits managed everything that tended to bring him into close relations with the boys, and in a short time his straightforward, gentlemanly way of doing things had won the hearts of every student of the school. He was a man with the nobler faculties of mind and soul. His life was a beautiful model of all that is good and pure. And throughout our lives let us sacredly cherish his memory, and in shaping our own characters let us, as closely as possible, follow the examples his life has so nobly given us.



ADRIAN FLOYD SMITS.

JACK MARKS.

Last year there was no brighter, jollier, or better-liked boy in school than Jack. He always had a joke or a laugh or a merry word for everyone. Full of mischief and pranks, he was always doing something.

When we left school last spring, we had no other thought but that Jack would be in our midst again the following fall. But one day never knows what the next will bring forth. Typhoid fever took him during the summer. It was a shock to all who had known this lovable fellow, when the news of his death came.

We all miss Jack this year, miss his jokes, pranks and merry disposition, and all who knew him feel most sincere regret that so promising a boy should be struck down by death in the midst of his happy boyhood days.

The deepest sympathies of the School go out to the family in its sorrow.

The Suffragette

THE WONDER WORKINGS OF A NIGHT IN JAIL.

The lights of dawn were rising fast,
When through an English village passed
A girl, who bore, mid jeers not nice,
A banner with the strange device—
"Votes For Women!"

Her brow was set, her eyes beneath
Shone like a falchion in its sheath;
And like quadruple fog horns rung
The accents of that well known tongue—
Votes For Women!"

In happy homes she saw the light
Of household fires gleam warm and bright;
To her was now all this but nil,
She had long since devoured that pill—
"Votes For Women!"

"Try not the leap," her brother said,
"There is political rage o'erhead."
"That's what I want—a little fame;
In jail I get, I'll out again—
"Votes For Women!"

"Oh, stop," her brother cried with fear,
"And please no more plate glass break here."
"My only hope—it is my last,
To get in jail before breakfast—
Votes For Women!"

"Beware, the copper has no heart;
He'll whistle, up will come the cart."
"Just let them take me to the jail,
For durned if I can't get the bail—
Votes For Women!"

"I'll do my duty—here I go,
Another righteous brick to throw."
She did. The coppers took her in;
But from her came above the din—
Votes For Women!"

At eve, as someone passed her way,
And yet she knew she was at bay,
She shook the bars of her cold cell,
And let out one more screeching yell—
"Votes For Women!"

"Outrageous!" cried the spinsters loud,
"And still indeed we are not cowed,
It helps the cause, you see, my dear;
Oh, she'll get out, O have no fear—
"Votes For Women!"

In the morn, with frowsy hair,
As she stepped out into the air,
Her friends were shocked, each one and all,
For with contrition she did bawl—
"Back to the Farm!"

TO THE BOYS OF M. U. S.

THE WEARERS OF THE RED AND THE BLUE.

(School Song, Dedicated by Lee McB. White.)

I call you loyal sons of M. U. S.,
Defenders of the Red and Blue,
Who in your sweet youth are so glorious,
To deeds of brain and brawn anew.
To deeds of brain and brawn anew,
Your youth bespeaks wonderful power;
Your eyes flash true; your bodies erect—
Behold! These may you wisely protect—
Shall burst into beauty as a flow'r.

Our well-trained teams to victory we shout!
Hurrah! for the Red and Blue!
As to gridiron and field they go out,
With muscles steady and hearts brave and true.
With muscles steady and hearts brave and true,
See! There they go! A mighty band,
To win honors for M. U. S. fame.
So ever we strive to help her name
With the greatest in all our land.

Work on, the heights attain,
For Life has need of you;
Strive on, the best e'er to gain—
The Future awaits you.

POETS' CORNER.

Sparr writes heroic poetry fine;
Conn writes a confidential kind;
Miltonic Knowlton's style is grave,
While Sully turns to fighters brave.
Ad. Johnston writes in ligher vein,
With Smith the trailer of that train.
McLallen's of romantic fame;
Lake's line is also much the same.
Comes Witzmann with satiric fire,
And Barnwell strikes the tuneful lyre.
N. Eckert writes of ladies fair,
Whom Graves consigns to vain despair.

THE STUDENTS' COUNCIL OF HONOR.

The Students' Council of Honor was organized in the fall of 1910. Its purposes are to deal with various matters that arise between pupils and teachers, but more especially matters of honor. The work of the organization has been excellent, and it has done much towards making the Honor System better understood and more effective than ever before.

THE WAY TO HEALTH.

A boy there was and he went to play,
Even as you and I,
At a game that lasted the livelong day—
Men called it a dream that would pass away,
But the boy he called it his work for today,
Even as you and I.

Oh! the game we played and the time we stayed
In the dreams that we loved to dream,
Belong to the days of the football game,
And the days of the years behind.

Oh! a boy there was and his youth he spent,
Even as you and I,
In a grind of study and deep content,
And it wasn't the least what his teachers meant;
But a boy must follow his natural bent,
Even as you and I.

Oh! the chance he lost and the health he lost
When he forsook the games of the boys
Can ne'er be regained as the years roll away,
And the best of our life's behind.

The youth is stript to his sickly hide,
Even as you and I;
A cause for pity from every side—
Just a man whose health has fled, sorely tried,
So his body is dead, but his mind is alive,
Even as yours and mine.

And it isn't the fault of the men who succeed,
Or the fault of the school you attend,
It's just what you are that will make the man
That lives long after he's dead.

TO YOU.

I.

If after you have gone your way,
And years have o'er you passed;
If then when you are old and gray,
And you're weary with life's task;
If perchance you turn these pages
And are looking for a laugh,
We hope that you will find it,
And may the joys of youth still last.

II.

And we hope that in life's battle
You will always meet success;
But if failure should o'ertake you,
May it turn to good at last.
And may this booklet always be—
A joy to you, my friend,
Because it brings your fancy back—
To M. U. S. again.

The HOUSE of QUALITY of the PRINTING ART

Wherever printing is bought throughout the South today the quality of our work has become almost a synonym of perfection.

NO matter whether the job be large or small, it is given our undivided and prompt attention from the time the order is placed until the goods are in the hands of our customer. These are the methods by which we have built up our business from an humble beginning until today we stand second to none in the South in point of equipment and service. Once a customer of ours, it is a habit of which you will not rid yourself. ¶ Our plant is not only the most complete to be found anywhere, but it is manned by a corps of expert artist mechanics who are masters of their craft and whose skill can be favorably compared with any workmen in the world.
